

CATARRH LEADS TO CONSUMPTION

Catarrh is as much a blood disease as scrofula or rheumatism. It may be relieved, but it cannot be removed by simply local treatment. It causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the voice, deranges the digestion, and breaks down the general health. It weakens the delicate lung tissues and leads to consumption.

Hood's Sarsaparilla goes to the seat of the trouble, purifies the blood, and is so successful that it is known as the best remedy for catarrh.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens and tones the whole system. It builds up. Ask your druggist for Hood's, and insist on having it. There is no real substitute.

Did it Pay?

About six months ago, S. A. Millburn bought three calves, paying $21 for the three. He fed them a little skimmed milk till they were able to make their living on the grass. Just came "Little Hungry," Greece's place $75, or $25 apiece, or a gross profit of $34. The feed consumed by those calves had no market value except perhaps the milk. The labor, after once turning on pasture was nothing. Although it would be a liberal estimate to put the entire cost at a dollar a head, which would leave a profit of $51 on an investment of $21 for a half year, or a gain equal to 86 per cent annual interest. Did it pay? The only remarkable thing about this is the fact that it is true, and had the investment been a few thousand dollars, it would have made a fortune. Don't forget that this is a stock country, and you can't lose if you get young growing stock, especially cattle.—Pawnee Times-Democrat.

EARNINGS OF
DUE TO PLAINSNET AND GROSS YIELD OF SYSTEM LARGEST THIS YEAR IN HISTORY

The fiscal year ending June 30, 1915, was the largest as to earnings, both gross and net, in the history of the Atchafalaya, Topock & Santa Fe Railway system, according to the report of the directors, through Mr. E. P. Ripley, president, to the stockholders. The gross revenue was $120,662,727. The net earnings were $36,916,609.

Two reasons, Mr. Ripley says, contributed mainly to this result—unprecedented wheat crop of Kansas, and the largely increased yield of agricultural products of all kinds in the so-called "plains country" in Western Texas and Western Oklahoma. The Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco and the Panama-California exposition at San Diego have created some passenger business, "but at such low rates," Mr. Ripley said, "as to afford little if any profit."

Notwithstanding the company's favorable showing, the income of $36,916,609 applicable to bond interest, dividends, improvements of property and strengthening of credit, Mr. Ripley explains, was only five and four-tenths per cent on the capital investment of $683,865,314.

The company paid a five per cent dividend on preferred stock and six per cent on common stock. It was able to do this because it pays an average of only slightly more than four per cent on its bonded debt, much of the debt having been created when money could be obtained at or near that rate. The average rate of interest on property investment in the nineteen and a half years under the present management is four and nine-tenths per cent.

After paying interest and dividends the directors put the balance of the earnings back into the property in order to keep it in the best possible physical condition. Through sundry adjustments the company found $11,421 which it carried to surplus, making a total surplus account of $30,583,221, which has accumulated during the nineteen and a half years of the present management. A fund to be called upon should any adverse condition arise.

The total expense for operation during the year was $78,248,812. The company's taxes for the system were $5,492,316.

THE SINS THAT CRUCIFIED CHRIST By Rt. Rev. Chas. D. Williams, M. P. Bishop of Michigan.

There is an old hymn which reads: "My sins nailed Him to the tree." Construed theologically, as it often is, and made to mean that each sinner who you and I commit was foreseen, measured, calculated and paid for in the agonies of Calvary, the declaration is utterly untrue to the modern mind and conscience.

But there is a sense in which this utterance is overwhelmingly true. Sin seems in certain aspects to have a personal, independent and enduring existence. Times, circumstances, sinners may change; but sin endures, ever the same.

The Cross of Jesus Christ is not only an altar of sacrifice. It is also a bar of judgment and "all sorts and conditions of men" are summoned before it, tried, tested, and convicted. The facts we look upon in the lurid light of that scene are familiar faces—faces we see in the crowd about us today: yes, faces like our own. And the sins that are revealed in that light are familiar sins, sins as we are sinning today: yes, sins like ours and mine.

There are personal and individual sins, then, like the cowardice of Pet-

Sam Sly is looking through all the keyholes in town for point 7.

You'll find the key to the solution by chewing Sterling Gum 5¢ The 7-point gum PEPPERMINT IN RED WRAPPER CINNAMON IN BLUE WRAPPER and the treachery of Judas, who set down the axes.

But there are also certain other sins, which might be called group sins or class sins. They are sins those temptations which in the examples of certain occupations and professions, in the circumstance and environments of certain classes in society and certain spheres of life, they belong naturally to the class, profession or occupation; and the individual seems to acquire, even absorb them from the very atmosphere about him. Perhaps the best name for them is composite sins.

You know what a composite photograph is. A group is chosen—plumbers, preachers, politicians, what-not. The photograph of each is taken and then one image is superimposed on another until the resultant, or composite, of the whole group is obtained. That composite the most common and characteristic features, good and indifferent, come out prominent.

There are four such composite photographs in the picture gallery of Calvary, and they reveal four distinct varieties of these group, class or composite sins.

It seems to have been ordained that every typical form of constituted authority—and every typical group or class in society—should have a part in the crucifixion of Christ. Each appears in turn before the tribunal of the Cross and is judged. The secular moral weakness the besetting sin of each is illuminated in the light of the great tragedy.

The state is there in the person of Pontius Pilate, the typical politician, a man of affairs, with his love of justice and fair play, wrecked by love of the game of diplomacy.

Satan is in the popular sense of the word; is there in Herod, the conventional gentleman of the day, the typical "man of the world," the sybarite, the hedonist of pleasure seeker, outwardly elegant, polite, refined, polished—inwardly empty, frivolous, coarse, rotten; the man, without a purpose or serious business in life.

The church is there in the person of the ecclesiastics, the chief priests, scribes and pharisees, scrupulous, conscientious, sincere in superlative degree, yet utterly unprincipled, untruthful, unreal.

The people are there in the crowd, the mob, that surges about the cross, the common people who heard Him gladly in Galilee, who followed Him with enthusiasm for a while and were even ready to make Him their King when they thought He would fulfill their ambitions, but who flung Him aside in rage when they found that His ideals and standards transcended their ambitions, the "people" who stand the strain of a high cause, or a great movement for righteousness just so long and then almost invariably slump at some great crisis.

"Public opinion"—the very foundation of all democracy, is tried and found wanting at Calvary. Its inherent weaknesses are revealed in the light of the cross. We learn there that "vox populi" is not always "vox Dei."

These are the four class, group or composite sins that crucified Jesus Christ and still crucify the seers and prophets, the reformers and leaders of righteousness, the servants of humanity, today.

CONSTRUCTION

IS IMPORTANT PART OF HOLDING DOWN COST OF FIRE INSURANCE

FIRE PROOF IS INVESTMENT

One Half of the Annual Fire Loss, If Expended in Bettering Construction, Would Greatly Reduce the Loss

(By C. W. McKeehen.)

Fire prevention in this state should consist not only of general cleanup and the removal of fire breaching material, but should also consist of proper building construction. Should you be considering the building of a new home, or other building or remodeling the old one, you should take into consideration the best method to make the building fire proof. You should use the best material in the construction if possible, but if you can not do this you should use every precaution to guard against fire, by the use of brick, properly constructed heating apparatus, properly installed electric appliances and gas connections. Fire proof building can be erected at a cost of about 10 per cent more than ordinary structure. The insurance rate is much lower and the building will rent for a better price and to a better class of tenants. In the winter a fireproof building is warmer and in the summer it is cooler, it can readily be appreciated that it is much better and of self interest to build a fire proof building rather than a non-fire proof whenever a building is to be of a permanent character.

A man may have the right in building a home to jeopardize his life and property and that of his family, and to take his chances with the insurance company, but when he can with a small additional cost, build a permanent home, one that he knows will stand fire and not be a trap for his family or a menace to his neighbor's property, in his own interest, and in the interest of fire prevention and fire protection he should build of fire proof material.

If one-half of the value of property destroyed by fire each year was expended in better building construction the losses from fire waste would rapidly decrease. Improvements along the line for better construction should be urged in all communities and in cities it should be compulsory. It should be the duty of all persons charged with the inspection of buildings or the issuing of building permits for construction to urge that all buildings be made fire proof or as near so as possible.

It is the desire of this department to eliminate the danger to life and to assist in the material reduction of the fire waste of our state which last year was about $2,000 per capita and we ask the co-operation of the citizens of our state as it is for your special benefit. The heavy toll that is being paid to insurance companies in the way of rates are on the account of faulty construction either in your own building or that of your neighbor. For the faulty construction you must pay an extra tax for which you receive no benefit other than monetary protection to the amount of your insurance policy and the insurance company assumes an extra fire hazard which it must pay in case of a loss from the premiums collected from you and your neighbors.

So long as the present conditions exist the fire waste of our state will rank high. Will you aid in the conservation of life and property in our state and assist in fire prevention and fire protection?

THE BONFIRE MENACE

This is the season for bonfires. Laves are being raked of the fallen leaves, and these are usually burned on the streets or premises. Every year a large number of fires are reported to the Fire Marshal Department as having been caused by sparks from bonfires, and each year nearly fifty women and children are burned to death by having their clothing ignited from such fires.

Care should be used not to light fires near buildings or when the wind is blowing, and children or incompetent persons should never be left in charge of them. Children should not be allowed to play around bonfires unless they are accompanied and carefully watched by some persons of mature age.

CLEAN UP

Make this year a clean year in every way. Prevent the possibility of a fire by entering earnestly into the work of fire prevention. Teach the children the danger of handling matches. Keep gasoline or kerosene out of the house. Place one or more fire extinguishers about the house and barn and show those whom you find to be careless the danger interest them in a clean, wasteless, trashless community. Do this and it will be more effective in the prevention of fires than all the laws that can be enacted by any legislature or ordinances to that end. A tidy housekeeper is the worst enemy of fire waste. This is conceded by insurance companies, and we appeal to you to be of this class and help the Insurance Department in its work for fire prevention, which is for your and your neighbor's benefit. Will you?

THE SMILEY UNION REVIVAL MEETINGS

If every one who makes a profession of Christianity in the City of Guthrie could be induced to lay aside the ordinary duties of life for this one month, and make their business and social functions conform to this concerted plan to awaken a higher religious consciousness, there would be fewer pharisees, less hypocrisy, and the work of the Holy Spirit would be more effective. Let us then, for this one month, do our share in this great work.

While the great European war is devastating the East, we should be generating a moral force in our own land that will enable us to do the great work of international peace-making when the time comes for us to act in such capacity.

It is a privilege to be willing to offer his gifts to the heavenly Father for help, and by so doing win the praise and highest respect of men, could we not well follow his example.

Let us pray and plan for this work as a business man. T. S. Pittenger.
